

Share Your Gifts

CARD ACTIVITY

Overview: Each card contains a personal gift mentioned in the children's book Remarkably You by Pat Zietlow Miller. Use the cards for the activities listed below to explore how you can share your gifts with the world.

Materials needed:

- Share Your Gifts cards (printed on white paper or cardstock)
- scissors to cut out the cards

Card Activities:

1. Pick and Name

Participants take turns picking up a card. When it's your turn, read the card aloud and think of someone you know who has that gift and shares it with the world.

2. Pick and Tell

Participants take turns picking up a card. When it's your turn, read the card aloud and explain how someone could share that gift with the world.

3. Good Combinations

1. Start with all the cards upside down on the table.
2. The first person picks and turns over two cards.
3. That person has to tell how those gifts can be used together. For example, "likes to draw" and "likes animals": A person who has both of those gifts could make posters for an animal shelter, advertising the dogs they have available for rescue.

4. That's Me!

1. Start with the cards placed face up and spread out on a table or the floor.
2. Together, read the cards aloud, one at a time.
3. If you feel the card describes you, take the card. Tell why you think that card tells your gift. (If there are disputes, the card goes to the person who has the least cards - It's good to remember each person has more than one gift and that more than one person has each gift!)
4. Each person draws a picture that shows them using all their gifts to make the world a better place.

 Share Your Gifts Cards

bold	loud	timid
small	big	funny
fast	quiet	likes counting, adding, and subtracting
likes adventure	likes to think about things	likes to sing
likes to spell	likes to build	likes to play sports
likes to play an instrument	likes animals	daring
likes books and reading	likes to make new friends	likes drawing
likes to swim	likes to help others	shy